NOTICE TO PATRONS OF THE LOCAL BANKS.

As an occasional accommodation to some of our customers we have kept our doors open after banking hours for the purpose of accepting deposits. The custom, however, has grown to such an extent that numbers of our patrons until after 2 P. M. and the deposit has been to pile up additional burdens upon the banks' employees and delay the balancing of ledgers until so late in the day that employees have no "breathing time" till after 11 o'clock at night, which is too much to ask of them.

We, therefore, are compelled to adhere to the rule of closing our doors absolutely at 2 P. M. and we will appreciate the consideration of our customers in transacting their banking business between the usual hours of 9 a. m. and 2 p. m.

MAIL-ORDER CONCERNS TEACH FARMERS A LESSON.

In an article called "Marketing by Parcel Post," Farm and Fireside prints this passage:
"There is a big lesson for us farmers to learn from the mail-order concern," commented Enns. "They know where to buy merchandise at a reasonable price, and, what is more important, they know how to sell it. Selling such a large amount of things by mail in 1915 and the first of 1916 wasn't an accident. These people did it by studying the needs of farmers, using order-pulling advertisements in farm papers, by filling orders promptly, and by giving good values."

"While the marketing problems of farmers differ from those of the mail-order houses," continued Enns, "the same business principles that made the mail-order firm a winner apply to our business. We farmers aren't worrying as much about production as we are about selling what we raise. We are not worrying now about marketing our sheep or hogs, or cattle with the stuff worth around 10 and 11 cents. We are not losing any sleep over the price of corn, or wheat, or alfalfa—except those of us who will have to buy grain and hay to finish out our feeding operations next winter."

CHRIST SCHOOL A MODEL INSTITUTION.

Mrs. Wetmore Tells Hendersonville Audience Something of the Work Being Done at Arden.

Mrs. Thos. Wetmore of Christ school at Arden, was a guest of the silver tea given by Mrs. R. M. Oates last Wednesday, and gave a most interesting talk of the work her school is doing for the people of the mountains. Among other things she told of the native ability and originality of the people in their industrial work, and as for being a people who copied as had been said of them, the truth was quite the reverse. As an example of this statement she mentioned basket weaving in the school and said their creative power in design was wonderful, often no two baskets being exact duplicates. Mrs. Wetmore told of the work and means of support of the school. The school is partially sustained by the work of its pupils. The girls are taught domestic science and home making. The boys are instructed in the trades most compatible to their environment and inclination. The boys of the school built a cottage last year of the native timbers and furnished it throughout, with furniture made by their own hands, thus a lesson was learned of the resources of their mountain home land and their own ability to develop them. These were only a few of the interesting things told by Mrs. Wetmore. Her address was replete with interest to her audience and gave them an insight into possibilities within their grasp to be of service to their people right here at home in home mission work.

TWO KILLED IN WRECK NEAR BILTMORE FRIDAY NIGHT.

Ben Enloe, of Judson, an engineer of a work train of the Asheville division, and Erwin Pitts residing at the Imperial hotel, Asheville, flagman of the same train, were killed Friday night near Biltmore, when several loaded coal cars crashed into their engine. The body of Pitts, badly scalded and mangled, was recovered soon after the wreck, but Enloe's body was not found until some time later. The cars, of which there were about eight or nine were part of freight train No. 172 that left Biltmore shortly after 8 o'clock bound from Asheville on the Spartanburg division. The train was made up wholly of coal cars and when the engineer saw that he could not make the hard grade of Buena Vista hill, the train was "doubled," the front section being taken on up the road and the rear part being left on the track with brakes set. No one would say who was to blame but the brakes did not hold and the cars started slowly, gaining headway on every foot of the heavy grade. The work train was backing into Biltmore and the engine was just south of a small trestle below the Fairview road crossing when the coal cars crashed into it.

The runaway cars, it is declared, must have been going at a great rate of speed from, their momentum gained in the three and one-half mile roll. Riding the cars was a brakeman named N. G. McGalliard, of Old Fort, who made frantic but unsuccessful efforts to set the brakes. Seeing that the crash was inevitable, he jumped just in the nick of time, escaping with several bruises. He was taken to the Biltmore hospital. Pitts was riding on the fireman's side of the engine cab when the collision occurred and was scalded badly by escaping steam. M. W. Clement, of Hosheshe, the fireman of the work train, was also scalded badly about the neck and side of the head and was somewhat bruised. He managed to jump, however, and saved his life. He was also taken to the Biltmore hospital.

The dead engineer was a man about thirty years old and unmarried, and has several brothers and other relatives in the employ of the railroad. Pitts is a young man and has been married only a few months. Neither of the two men who were injured are married.

The track was cleared early Saturday morning, delaying southbound passenger train No. 42 only about an hour.

WILL NOT RECEIVE STUDENTS BELOW THE FOURTH GRADE.

Fassifern Has Employed Trained Teacher to Look After Needs of Boarding and Day Pupils.

To the Editor of The Hustler:
Notwithstanding the fact that both Hendersonville papers have advertised the fact that day pupils will be welcomed at Fassifern, a report to the contrary has been circulated. The management has decided it is for the best interest of all concerned to receive no students below the fourth grade. Last year an attempt was made to open a primary department. Twenty children entered, representing six grades. Consequently, it took the entire time of two teachers to instruct them. One of these has a college degree and had been engaged for high school and college preparatory work. Any one can see that the department cost about three times as much as it brought in.

For the term 1916-17, a trained teacher, with abundant experience has been engaged to look especially after the needs of boarding and day pupils who are not ready for the high school course. Girls who are ready to begin fourth year's work will be received either as boarding or day pupils. Mrs. Lucian Walker, who will be in charge of this intermediate department, is a woman of culture, splendid mental endowments wide experience. She taught in Charlotte graded schools, the Presbyterian College (now Queen's) St. Mary's, Raleigh, and Virginia College, Roanoke. Fassifern congratulates itself upon the acquisition of so valuable an acquisition to its faculty.

ELECTION RETURNS.

Governor Richard I. Manning won the renomination for governor of South Carolina over Cole L. Blease former governor by a majority of about 4,000 votes. This was the second or run-off primary. Blease having received a lead of about 24,000 votes in the first when five candidates were running.

Returns from the election in Maine show the republican victory to have been complete. Carl F. Milliken, republican, for governor, won over Oakley C. Curtis, democrat, present incumbent, by a majority of 13,000 votes. The republicans will have solid delegations in both branches of congress and will easily control both branches of the legislature.

Incomplete returns from the Democratic primary election in Georgia Tuesday indicate that Hugh M. Dorsey was nominated for governor over Nat E. Harris, present incumbent. The nominees in the primary will be declared at the State convention in Macon September 26.

Camp Lee Overman, Salisbury, Sept. 13.—With 300 men in uniform living the active life of a military encampment this place has been an interesting one for visitors this week. This open air initiation is something entirely new for secret orders and will be handled under the care of Gen. E. B. Lewis, who is representing the sovereign camp at this encampment.

SHOOTS HOTEL OWNER IN QUARREL OVER DOG.

Greenville, S. C., Sept. 12.—A. A. Gates, a well known hotel man of this city, was shot and seriously wounded about 9 o'clock this morning by C. Ward, formerly of Atlanta, but now employed by "Jim" Payne in a local near-beer establishment. Ward had been rooming at Gates' hotel, and insisted on taking a dog to his room. Mr. Gates prohibited him from carrying the animal up and after a quarrel, Ward drew a pistol and fired. The shooting took place in the lobby of the hotel, in the presence of Mrs. Gates and a guest.

The ball penetrated the right shoulder. Mr. Gates was operated on at a local hospital and will probably recover.

Mr. Gates is well known here where he resided with his family several years and owned the Gates hotel.
